Awareness day for adoptive parents and other permanent carers

Non-violent resistance and new authority awareness day for parents & carers: a first introduction to principles and methods

Who should attend
Adoptive parents and other permanent carers. Support workers can attend with a parent if they feel it is appropriate to do so.

Trainer
Rachel Aylmer has worked with families and young people as a behaviour support specialist for twenty years, mainly with local government and most recently with a non-statutory service. She has carried out innovative work with NVR in parent groups, and single family intervention with parents in their home environment. Rachael has pioneered the integration of NVR and 12-step principles in her work with parents recovering from addiction, and has supported PartnershipProjects by providing training and supervision on the NVR Certificate Course.

Benefits of attending:
Participants will become familiarised with the underlying principles of NVR, and learn about some of the core methods which help build ‘new authority’ in the family and re-connect parent and child.

No more walking on eggshells: From helplessness to parental authority and agency - overcoming parental ‘obedience’ and submission to the demands of the child. Re-capturing parental ‘space’ in the family.
- De-escalation: Discovering ways to find calm determination and accepting

Benefits of attending:
of unconditional kindness, care and love.
- From shame to repair and belonging: challenging and supporting children and young people to make reparation to others, so they can once again find their place in the family and community.
