

Workshop for adopted adults

Reunion and beyond

Who should attend

Adopted adults

Trainer

Mike Hancock is Head of Adult Services at PAC-UK, a counsellor and an adopted person. He has seen adoption, reunion and many points in between personally and with the adopted adults he's worked with both individually and in groups.

Comedian Stewart Lee described "the social weightlessness of adoption". Picked up in a tornado and placed somewhere new and unknown – no wonder putting the pieces back together is so difficult. A chance for adopted people to talk together about that displacement, the possibility of reunion and what it does to our relationships, especially with birth and adoptive families. An opportunity to tell our stories whether reunion has occurred or not in a safe group who might just understand.
